When Two Months Old, Baby had Pimples Spread All Over Body — Broke and Left Skin Like a Scald - An Awful Sight - Doctor Afraid to Put His Hands on the Child.

CURED AT SLIGHT COST BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terriblevezzema from head to foot, all over her body. The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few mattered pimples. They would break the skin and peel off leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scaled. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see soignall a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed. "Then we decided to try Cuttura. By using the Cutioura Ointment we softened the scabrand it came off. Under this, where the real matter was, by washing with the Cutioura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times dally. After three days you could see the body gaining a little skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Cinticant and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few suffering with eczema. PITIFUL CASE OF BUILDING SKIN DISEASE THROUGH OREGON

(San Francisco Chronicle.)
Announcement that the definite intention of the Southern Pacific to build and Drain-Coos Bay road is ex pected soon comes from Tacoma, Wash, and revives the drooping hopes of the people of the middle western shores of Oregon. Activity along the Drain-Coos Bay extension by engineers was reported late in 1909 and led the people of that section to believe that the road would be

The construction of the Coos Bay line was commenced by the Southern Pacific in 1906, but was later suspend-ed. It is not generally known that one of Ogden's capitalists was at one time near to the point of building the Coos Bay road, and it was only through the high prices at which the adjacent lands were held which prevented the consummation of the plan. Now it is reported that the activity of the Southern Pacific is accentuated by rumors that James J. Hill has his eye on the immense timber tonnage of that country. Hill's in-vasion of Oregon is taken to mean that more than one cross-state line will be added to the railroad mileage of the Webfoot state, including the Oregon Trunk line, and another line from Odell to the Hood River valley, to Lakeview, not far north of the Callfornia tnd Nevada line

Rich Territory Isolated. For years the people of Coos Bay, which is located about midway of the state north and south on the Pacific ocean, had no railroad at all. The section was sparsely settled, and though the harbor at Coos Bay was capable of great possibilities, and the country round about was densely timbered and the climate was equal to any on the Oregon coast, yet the Coos Bay country was isolated on account of the fact that there were no roads in or out and that paths leading to and from Coos Bay led nowhere else. Then a little local railroad between Marshfield, the county seat of Coos county, and Myrtle Point, a town 15 or 20 miles further down the coast, was constructed in the hope that the Southern Pacific or some other inter-est would continue the branch to Roseburg, the then nearest point on the Southern Pacific or some other interest would continue the brinch to Roseburg, the then nearest point on the Southern Pacific, whose line passes up to Portland through the state 60 miles or more inland. The hope of the people of Coos Bay was blasted, for the road remained at Myrtle Point, and the Southern Pa-cific refused to build. The horizon looked dark for the inhabitants of that section, for they had almost staked their all on the outcome of the railroad. They had billions of feet of timber; they had climate; they had soil; they had the ocean and all the advantages of a good harbor, and a sea coast town, and were located in the midst of one of the best states in the Union. They had everything to offer in the way of inducements for a railroad, even going to the expense of building 20 miles of the line them-

David Eccles Interested.

Then the people of Coos bay went to David Eccles, the Ogden millionaire railroad man, who already operated a railroad 60 miles long in east ern Oregon. The road he had in operation was begun as a lumber road but had reached out in the building up of the country through which it passed, and became an important ar tery of commerce in the section it had bene the means of developing. Several extensions had been built to the road and others had been planned for the future. The people of Oregon had confidence in David Eccles, bethere to stay and to build up their selves. But their plea was unheard; the railroad remained away.

They went to him with a proposi-They went to him with a proposi-tion to build the balance of the branch of the Coos Bay line from Myrtle Point to Roseburg. They gave him statistics of the resources of the county, and told him how much tim-ber could be had for a railroad. They showed him that they really had a proposition alluring to any railroad builder, and made him offers to build.

Mr. Eccles considered the plan long and deeply. It looked good to him. The hopes of the people rose again, and for a time it looked like the Marshfield-Roseburg line would be finally built. But the unexpected always happens, and so it was in this Land sharks controlled much of the right of way that was neces-sary and demanded extortionate and in some cases prohibitive prices for their holdings. The Utah capitalist their holdings. The Utah capitalist finally gave up the project, which again lay idle until report had it that James J. Hill was going into the country bringing his Oregon Trunk line and Oregon Eastern line and all the energy and capital he is known to possess with him into the new field. Then the Southern Pacific got busy, tad the report is now circulated that the people of Coos Bay are at last to have a railroad which will ex-tend from Drain a station on the Southern Pacific in Douglas county. westward to the coast and southward into Coos Bay, with the probabity that the branch to the south and eastward toward Roseburg, will be com-pleted at a later date.

ANDERSON DIVORCE CASE FULL OF SENSATIONS.

Salt Lake, Feb. 9.—The contested divorce case of Emily O. Anderson against Andrew G. Anderson was on trial before Judge Armstrong of the district court Tuesday and will be concluded today. Both parties to the action are beyond middle age and each accuses the other of drunkenness and cruelty. They were married on No-vember 19, 1890. Mrs. Anderson al-leges that her husband has been an habitual drunkard for some time and frequently came home and cursed her and beat her with his fists. On one and beat her with his fists. On one occasion she declared that he struck her with a chair.

Anderson alleges that his wife is also an habitual drunkard and has been for the past three years. He alleges that on one occasion she came home drunk and assaulted him with a hammer and that he was compelled to sleen in the cellar with the deep to sleep in the cellar, with the door nailed down, for fear of further as-saults upon him. In addition to that, he asserts that she forgot her mar-riage vows and names Carl Mitchell

WHEN JOHNSON SAW JEFFRIES SLAUGHTER OF

(By Tad.)

New York, Feb. 9.—Jack Johnson mooched in to see Jeffries fight Ruhlla in Frisco way back in 1901. It was the first time Johnson had seen the big fellow work and at the time coffee and doughnuts was a rare treat with the colored fellow. He had never been given a fat purse, and as for an auto, he never dreamed of one.

Jeffries and Rhulin fought in Mechanics' pavilion. Next door to the big pavilion wan an annex, where the small club held weekly bouts. It was a cinch to beat your way into the pavilion if you could only make the annex, so upon the day of the fight Eddie Hanlon, Harry Foley and Jack Johnson got in to see Sam Pruitt, and Johnson got in to see Sam Pruitt, an-other colored fellow who was boxing instructor and janitor.

They stuck around awhile and kidded Sam and then about 5 o'clock in the afternoon hid beneath the ring of the annex. Mr. Pruitt started to lock up at 6 o'clock and with his big lantern made the rounds. Everything tern made the rounds. Everything was fine. No one was around to steal the gloves or bags and everything was spic and span. Sam started for the door to slip the lock, when he heard a sound of giggling. It must be burglars, he thought; no, it might be a robber, and then again it might be rats. He listened again and made the rounds once more. He started around with the lamp and after he had tried all the lockers and the rooms thought there might be some hidden under the ring. He looked, and sure enough he piped a bunch of gold teeth and two others.

"Come right out heah, you black

Jack Johnson and you big Harry Foley, Come right out!" The trio told Sam to hold the light there a moment and they would come right out. While he was holding the torch like Miss Lib crty the three came out the other side of the ring and before Pruitt could find them again they were hidden in a room which was shut off from Mechanics' pavilion by a thin wall. Pruitt bunted all over the gymnasium for the bunch and while he was doing the Diogenes thing they pulled out two boards and climbed into the big pavilion under the bleachers.

There they saw Jeffries and Ruhlin enter the ring and fight one of the most disappointing bodies of the year. Jeffries was right at his best then. He had beaten Fitz and Corbett and was confidence personlified. Ruhlin. who had a few years previous fought Jeff a draw at the same club, told the sports that he would beat the big fellow's head off. Billy Madden, who had Rublin at the time, felt the same way, and, of course, hundreds of dol-lars changed hands on the fight. Jeff never felt surer of anything in his life than he did of beating Ruhlin. Moving pictures were to be taken of the thing, and there was a tremen-dous house. It was a cinch for Jeff. He was in superb form. He felt like ifghting that night and could hardly wait for the bell to ring. He played with Ruhlin that night. He was younger, stronger, full of ginger and longed for a slugging bee. R backed, stalled, held and ran. didn't get a chance to mix at all. three rounds it was a joke. In fourth he held his left hand high. fiting Ruhlin to come in and belt him but Gus stayed away at a safe dis-tance and tried to box. Jeff followed him around and whenever he did get near enough to Gus hooked him in the stomach. In the fifth he hooked Gus right again and the latter flopped with an agonized look on his face. Billy Madden threw up the sponge as much disgusted and disappointed as any one else.

ne writer, along with some others, Jeff in his room after the fight and the big fellow was chewing the gum that he entered the ring with. "I was just longing for a fight tonight," he said, as he pulled on his shirt, "but I couldn't get the fellow shirt, "but I couldn't get the fellow to come near me. I even held up my hand for him to hit me, so that I could get him close, but then he backed away. Oh, I was prime tonight and I felt as rotten about the flasco as you fellows do about about wasting all that training for nothing." The moving pictures proved a fail-re. They wouldn't have drawn 20 cents anywhere. That was the first time Jack Johnson saw Jeffries fight. He saw Jeff when he was at the height of his car-eer and when he looked and felt as though he could put up the greatest fight of his career.

Whether he is as good now as he was then remains to be seen. Jack Johnson, the same gent, will be the first to know.

ANOTHER FLING AT 1910 FOOTBALL RULES

Chicago, Feb. 9.-Western football coaches and faculty members are to have another fling at the 1910 foot-ball rules Coach A. A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago, member of the natoinal rules committee announced yesterday that opinions of the 'Big eight' experts would be sought before the next meeting of the national body. March 25, at New York.

This contractor got results. Some years ago a contractor build-ing a railroad in a warm climate was troubled a great deal by sickness among the laborers.

He turned his attention at once to their food and found that they were getting full rations of meat and were drinking water from a stream near by. He issued orders to cut down the amount of meat and to increase greatly the quantity of Quaker Scotch Oats fed

He also boiled Quaker Scotch Oats and mixed the thin oatmeal water with their drinking water. Almost instantly all signs of stomach disorders passed and his men showed a decided improvement in strength and spirits. This contractor had experience that taught him the great value of good oatmeal.

IN PLACER WORK

Salt Lake, Feb 7-Dr. W. H. Schock returned from his placer claims a week ago after having done the as-sessment work on his holdings on the Colorado river, says the Richfield Rea-per. The doctor still has great faith in the gravel beds of the river and he looks for considerable activity there the coming summer.

The Good Hope company is prepar-ing to put in machinery to work the beds. This is the company that has secured a coal claim on Hansen creek and will put in an electric plant there and transmit the power to the diggings on the river, a distance of 25 miles. Bert Seaboldt has promoted a company for this purpose.

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR BLOOD POISON

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, so insignificant that often no attention is given it. But when the blood becomes more fully infected with the virus the mouth and throat get sore, glands in the neck and groin swell, and sometimes ulcerate, forming sores and ulcers, the hair comes out, copper colored spots appear on the body, and where the disease is allowed to remain in the system the poison frequently penetrates deeper and attacks the bones. S.S. s. is the true antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the only remedy that is able to get at the very root of the trouble and remove every particle of the virus from the circulation; at the same time S.S. S. acts with upbuilding and tonic effect on every portion of the system. As soon as the system gets under the influence of S.S. S. the symptoms begin to disappear and soon a perfect cure is made, S.S. S. can be used in the privacy of one's own home and a permanent cure effected. To aid those who wish to cure themselves at home we have prepared a special Home Treatment book which contains much valuable information to Contagious Blood Poison Sufferers. With much valuable information to Contagious Blood Poison Sufferers. With the aid of this book and the use of S.S.S. a cure can be effected in every case. We will send this book, and also any medical advice desired free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.
